ANAND “AJ” JAGNANAN

“ I came in with a motorized wheelchair. The doctor said I would be in a wheelchair for one to two years, but by the second week, I was walking. ”

Although told he would never walk again after a spinal cord injury, the day Anand Jagnanan, known as AJ, arrived at Nexus Neurorecovery Center he vowed he was going to walk out on his own. After recognizing his deficits and realizing what he needed to work on, AJ became very thankful for his encouraging family and Nexus staff.

“I find the people very friendly and willing to work with me,” said AJ.

“I push myself very hard because I am determined to one day walk myself out of here. My experience is one out of the extraordinary.”

Graduating from Speech-Language Therapy, AJ’s team explained he has surpassed every goal that has been set for him. Even AJ himself is proud of his progress.

“I set challenges and I overcome the tasks every time,” stated AJ. “I am looking forward to continuing to get help and one day walking out of here.”

Proving hard work and determination pay off, AJ is now walking independently and carries a cane for long distances.
